

Terms of Submission

Welcome to the Clinical Trials Community (CTC) portal (“site”).

About these terms

Please read these Terms of Submission carefully before using this site. By using this site, you signify your agreement to be bound by these conditions.

This statement sets out the terms under which you may use the site to post, transmit, upload, or otherwise submit any content or other material to the site (each a “Submission”). By submitting, you confirm that you accept these Terms of Submission.

Information about us

The goal of the CTC is to increase the level of Clinical Trial investments in Africa by increasing the visibility of African clinical trialists and research sites as well as making transparent and accessible individual country regulatory and ethics procedures to inform decision making.

The Clinical Trials Community provides a platform for constant engagement among key stakeholders to increase efficiency and promote steady collaborations.

The development of the CTC portal (“the site”) is funded by the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation (BMGF)

All Submissions

- You will continue to own any intellectual property rights you hold in the submissions. The Site only asks for a license to use the submissions for the purposes set out in these Terms of Submission.

By making any submission, you warrant that:

- you have the legal right and the authority to submit in accordance with these Terms of Submission; and
- all submissions comply with the Acceptable Use Policy.

You acknowledge and agree that:

- You are responsible for protecting and enforcing any intellectual property rights you hold in the submissions and the Site has no obligation to do so on your behalf; and
- The Site may, without notice to you, reject, or refuse to use or delete any submission at any time where it considers this to be reasonably necessary.

Collaborative workspaces & Shared Data

Although the Site will use reasonable endeavours to protect any submission you may submit to the site, it does not guarantee the security of any submission used in a collaborative workspace: any submission to a collaborative workspace is at your own risk.

You should not use the collaborative workspaces to upload any data or other findings that identify, or could be used to identify, a living individual.

By submitting to a collaborative workspace, you grant to the Site a revocable, non-exclusive, worldwide license to use, host, store, reproduce, modify, create derivative works, communicate, distribute, and otherwise use such submissions to provide the collaborative workspace and enable their functionality.

You may, at any time and for any reason, delete submissions from the collaborative workspace and withdraw the Site's right to use such submissions, but you accept that such submissions may have been downloaded and used by other users in the collaborative workspace and the Site has no control over the use of any submissions which may have been downloaded or copied from the collaborative workspace by other users.

The Site acknowledges the importance of preserving your access to submissions held in a collaborative workspace. If no one has logged into a collaborative workspace within 12 months or the Site discontinues the provision of collaborative workspaces the Site will where reasonably possible, give you reasonable advance notice and a chance to remove any submission from a collaborative workspace.
